AN INDEPENDENT JOURNAL,
DEVOTED TO HAWAIIAN PROGRESS.

PUBLISHED AND EDITED BY HENRY M. WHITNEY.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 8.

A LETTER has been received at the Foreign Office from Senator Sargent, speaking in the most complimentary terms of Judge Allen, our Envoy at Washington, and of his labors in connection with the Reciprocity Treaty. The letter was brought out by the last commodity published in the San Francisco and Honolulu papers, which censured him for a lack of vigilance in securing its speedy operation. Knowing Judge Allen as well as we do, we were confident, at the time, that the writers who censured him were misinformed, and that when the facts became known, it would find that he was most active in securing its final triumph, and to him a large share of the credit justly belongs.

The Board of Immigration has decided to invite the immigration of Portuguese from the Western Islands, and offers a free passage to a limited number of men accompanied by their wives, who will come hither and settle. The question as to how they shall get here has been solved by the opportunity of Mr. Bartlett, of New Bedford, who will furnish passages to each man, to migrate, the Board guaranteeing Messrs. Bartlett & Son forty-five dollars passage money for each man and fifty dollars for each woman, the whole number not to exceed two hundred. There are now about 400 Portuguese here, and they are among the most industrious of our people, being generally small farmers or dairymen, or serving on plantations and ranches. An increase in their number is very desirable, and the Board acts wisely in taking these prompt measures to secure a further immigration of them.

The weather for the past month has been a meteorological enigma, puzzling even the clerk of the weather, who, with his barometer, pluviometer and anemometer has left for parts unknown, disgusted with all the signs of the times. Such weather as has prevailed here for a month reminds us of the appropriate with which this ocean was named Pacific—for it has been during this period "as smooth as a mill-pond." Five months without rain enough to lay the dust—but it should be added, that the dust is six inches deep. An old resident tells us that he has never seen it so dry during forty years residence in Honolulu; as it has been this year. This drought extends to Maui and Hawaii, while Kauai is comparatively well off, receiving in the middle of velvet green, and having had a good soaking from the Equinoctial Kona which passed over the group a month since.

YESTERDAY, the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, was the national election day in the United States, when five million votes were cast for electors of President and Vice-President. Messrs. Hayes, of Ohio, and Wheeler, of New York, are the Republican nominees; and Messrs. Tilden, of New York, and Hendricks, of Indiana, are the Democratic. The following table shows in what States the Republicans and Democrats controlled the State Governments during 1876, which supplies the most reliable data obtainable on the probable result of the election:

State	Rep.	Dem.	Vote
Alabama	1	1	1
Arkansas	1	1	1
California	1	1	1
Colorado	1	1	1
Connecticut	1	1	1
Delaware	1	1	1
Florida	1	1	1
Georgia	1	1	1
Idaho	1	1	1
Illinois	1	1	1
Indiana	1	1	1
Iowa	1	1	1
Kansas	1	1	1
Kentucky	1	1	1
Louisiana	1	1	1
Maine	1	1	1
Maryland	1	1	1
Massachusetts	1	1	1
Michigan	1	1	1
Minnesota	1	1	1
Mississippi	1	1	1
Missouri	1	1	1
Montana	1	1	1
Nebraska	1	1	1
Nevada	1	1	1
New Hampshire	1	1	1
New Jersey	1	1	1
New Mexico	1	1	1
New York	1	1	1
North Carolina	1	1	1
North Dakota	1	1	1
Ohio	1	1	1
Oklahoma	1	1	1
Oregon	1	1	1
Rhode Island	1	1	1
South Carolina	1	1	1
South Dakota	1	1	1
Tennessee	1	1	1
Texas	1	1	1
Vermont	1	1	1
Virginia	1	1	1
Washington	1	1	1
West Virginia	1	1	1
Wisconsin	1	1	1
Wyoming	1	1	1

All the states in the first column are pretty certain to have gone Republican yesterday, with perhaps the exception of North Carolina and Florida, doubtful states, with fourteen electoral votes. On the other hand, California probably gave yesterday 5,000 Republican majority, Indiana, 5,000; and New York, 10,000 to 15,000 for the same party. Apparently, the contest looks like a very close one, but there can be no doubt that Hayes and Wheeler have secured at least 200 out of the 369 electoral votes.

As some of our readers may not understand how this large number of electoral votes is obtained, we will say that each state is entitled to one vote in the electoral college for every representative and every Senator it has in Congress. There are 293 representatives, including Colorado, just admitted into the Union, and 76 Senators, making a total of 369, a majority of which, 185, is necessary to elect the President and Vice-President.

We shall not probably get the full details of the election by the steamer next week, as she will leave San Francisco the morning after the election; but she may supply us with returns sufficient to decide which party has won in the contest.

Dr. Scott, U. S. Consul, figures the result of the election as follows:

States	Hayes	Tilden	States	Hayes	Tilden
Alabama	10	1	Nevada	3	1
Arkansas	10	1	New Hampshire	3	1
California	55	1	New Jersey	14	1
Colorado	3	1	New Mexico	3	1
Connecticut	7	1	New York	36	1
Delaware	3	1	North Carolina	11	1
Florida	11	1	North Dakota	3	1
Georgia	11	1	Oregon	3	1
Idaho	3	1	Rhode Island	1	1
Illinois	27	1	South Carolina	11	1
Indiana	11	1	South Dakota	3	1
Iowa	11	1	Tennessee	11	1
Kansas	11	1	Texas	11	1
Kentucky	11	1	Vermont	3	1
Louisiana	11	1	Virginia	11	1
Maine	7	1	Washington	3	1
Maryland	11	1	West Virginia	11	1
Massachusetts	11	1	Wisconsin	11	1
Michigan	11	1	Wyoming	3	1
Minnesota	11	1
Mississippi	11	1
Missouri	11	1

He claims that most of the States passed in the doubtful column will go for Hayes than for Tilden.

The steamer's stoppage at this port ought to be a convenience to the mercantile public as well as passengers, instead of an annoyance, as it has been on several occasions. For instance, the boat arrives late in the afternoon, and it is given out that she will sail as early as practicable in the morning. Rumor fixes six o'clock, then eight, then nine, when passengers and mails are all on board waiting.

waiting. Then she can't get off till noon, and finally does not get off about 3 p. m., having been in port from 20 to 24 hours. The causes of the delay we know nothing of, but we are certain they do not rest with the agents, who are generally done with the boat at the hour set. Now, the remedy is very simple—let twenty-four hours as the time she can remain here. Generally this time is necessary to discharge and take in freight, and when it is not, it is needed to cool down and examine the machinery, which requires inspection; and if this is not done in port here, it is done at sea. One of the engineers of these boats remarked in our hearing that "he considered a stoppage of 24 hours at Honolulu as an absolute necessity."

Evolution.

THE three lectures which Huxley has recently delivered before crowded houses in New York, have invested this theory with fresh interest, and have as a matter of course stirred up the more excitable of the religiousists to fierce opposition. There is a large class of well-meaning people who believe that the theory of Evolution is Darwinism, and that Darwinism is Atheism, but we must acknowledge that to us the development theory appears more consistent with what we know of God's plan of work from actual observation than any other. It may appear to be inconsistent with the Biblical version of the creation of the animal world, but no more so than the teachings of geology are inconsistent with the literal declarations of Genesis, which only a few years ago it was a heresy to doubt, that the world was made out of nothing in less time than a week. Many wise and reverent Christians (says the N. Y. Independent) often warmly advocate or willingly accept development. At the present day nearly all students of the laws of life are Darwinists in the broader sense of the word. They are believers in the origination of species by birth and development, and not by special creation. Of these a fair proportion, as large a proportion as of lawyers or of statesmen, believe in God and in Christianity. They are an exceptionally intelligent body of men, thinkers by careful training, and they believe that one can accept heartily the cardinal truths of our faith, and yet hold that man and all animals and plants are developed from primordial vital germs. Some respect should be paid to such men. They deserve it. They may be wrong in holding both to development and religion; but the presumption is that they are not. In this matter the theologians are at a disadvantage. They do not have the final word in this matter of development. The belief of the world is to be settled utterly without their advice. Not what they say, but what the scientists say, is to conclude the debate. Whether species have been produced by development or by creation is a question of fact, to be settled purely by scientific evidence. It is not a matter of philosophy or of morals, to be decided by consulting the psychical or ethical consciousness; nor is it a matter of revelation, to be decided by consulting the Word of God. For the conclusion we must examine to see whether new species are being now produced about us and whether the records which the earth has preserved of its own history tell us anything on the subject. This is a task of the naturalist, and not of the theologian; and so far as we can judge at present, the answer which the naturalists will give is in favor of the new theory.

Evolution does not deny God. Nearly all evolutionists are theists. We acknowledge that it appears to remove God a little further off; but that is only in seeming. God may be just as active and present in law as he is in miracle. Be it remembered that every single conquest which science has made in reducing phenomena under the sway of law has appeared to many to put God at a greater distance. But by it God's government has only been made more orderly and his own character more glorious.

Many wise men hold, with Professor Asa Gray, that the argument for the existence of God drawn from design is not destroyed nor even weakened by the theory of evolution. They see a designer in the law and progress of the evolution of an eye or a hand as clearly as in its absolute creation. Now allow us a God, and revelation is an easy deduction. That evolution is inconsistent with the literal promise interpretation of the story of Adam created de novo out of dust, and Eve out of his rib, we do not deny; but the story of Eden is so true in its essence and yet carries so many signs of a symbolic or poetical meaning that this fact need disturb none but those who will not listen to reason. It is even true that the story of the fall of man in its most literal interpretation, with the doctrine of imputation of Adam's sin included, is not utterly inconsistent with development, though it is with Darwinism. None but the most rigid defenders of an unchangeable faith, settled to its minutiae some centuries ago, need fear the doctrine.

The Explosion at Hell Gate.

New York, Sept. 24.—The explosion at Hell Gate was successful. After the last gun of warning a deep hush fell upon the multitude. Stillness was complete and broken from then until the third gun at ten minutes to three, which was followed precisely at two minutes to three by the explosion. It was straight and seemingly narrow lines running north and south for about three hundred yards the water whitened and arose evenly three or four feet high. A dull thud was heard; the rocks trembled beneath the feet of the multitude as from two quick sharp pulsations of an earthquake, the water appeared to remain stationary for an instant, broke and sprang up in irregular, yellowish masses, about twelve feet high, mixed with dark smoke from the dynamite; then it fell back, and in a moment the river resumed its usual peaceful aspect, then a mighty cheer arose from all the northern side of the city, and from the steamers and boats steam whistles were blown, the bells rung joyously, and all was over. The report was scarcely noticeable; not the smallest fragment of rock was hurled up, and not so much as a ripple was caused upon the water, only just over the spot where the explosion took place. There was no concussion in the air, and not a pane of glass was broken in the city or on Ward's Island. Immediately after the explosion hundreds of row boats set out at their speed for Hell Gate, each anxious to have the honor of first passing over the scene of the explosion. That the work was effectually done is the general feeling, and this also appears from the fact that the police boat passed over that spot safely. The tide has been materially changed by the explosion, and now the current sets directly on Big and Little Mill Rocks, and they will have to be exploded next.

New York, Sept. 25.—General News pronounced today the Hell Gate explosion thorough and complete. Some persons were inclined to believe from the slight ripples and shock that only a part of the explosives had been discharged.

Great efforts are being made in England and on the Continent to send medical appliances and material comforts to the sick of war in Turkey for both Serbians and Turks.

Centennial Letters—No. 7.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 21, 1876.
DEAR GAZETTE.—I must make a brief mention of the Government building, which is quite as much an object of attraction as any of the five principal halls. Everything is arranged in the most beautiful and orderly manner. There is a miniature of the General Post Office, at Washington, which transmits a great deal of business; mails are sent and received daily, postage and postal orders sold. There are models of almost everything used in the army and navy, beautiful boats of full size, and life-like figures of soldiers and marines and common sailors in the full dress of their different rank and station. The furniture worn by Dr. Kane when on his Arctic expedition is exhibited; a life-like fish with clear blue eyes, shining out from the furry folds of the cap with its arms outstretched. The exhibit of fire-arms and accoutrements is particularly full and minute. There are portraits of all the commanders and naval officers who have distinguished themselves in the past history of our country. Relics of Washington and many things which show the contrast between the times of a century ago and the present. Outside the building are immense cannon and ambulances and army wagons; also specimen of fog signals, both the braying horn and the shrill whistle. There is also the hospital, into which I but peeped, for its long line of exquisitely neat beds with snowy white coverings and close mosquito nets carefully drawn, seemed to breathe an air of being the abode of sickness, which was heightened by the figure of a female with bandaged limbs suspended, or splinted; and it seemed by the small number of visitors about it, to breathe an air of tabulae, and I felt as if I was out of place. There is a dispensary attached, everything conducted on the plan of larger establishments of the United States Government. The grounds around are kept with exquisite neatness, and beds of lovely flowers ornament them, the same as in other parts of the park. One of the greatest curiosities, to me, in the Government building, was a large glass case which was labeled "Autopsy Refrigerator," where were frozen fruit and fish. There was one very large fish, unnamed, suspended from the ceiling; a Spanish mackerel was exhibited, which had been already shown in this same way to two annual fairs of 1874 and 1875, and one very large black trout which had been on exhibition three years. Whether the ice keeps solid all the time there or is renewed, I had no time to explain, but there are slabs of ice with strawberries frozen in them which do not change day after day as we look on them. Some plates of luscious peaches and strawberries show their tempting forms day after day without change. There are many curiosities in the Arctic region, of stuffed walrus, and sea lions of immense size, and painted models of whales of various kinds. The whale was really elegant, as I thought, though I heard others express a different opinion and almost shudder as they went past. While on the subject of State Buildings, I neglected to mention Mississippi, which is more attractive for its quaintness outside than wonderful beauty within. It is a log structure of native woods, and all of its rustic. The porch and railings are made of the most fantastic roots and gnarly branches, every part is festooned with the graceful hanging moss of the Southern swamps and bayous to that it gives a most pleasing variety to the line of State Buildings. A brief mention of the Zoological display which is made in a building by itself quite near to Agricultural Hall, must close this letter. Here is a slight bewitching to the eye, grateful to the sense of smell, and most tempting to the palate; but every where the warning "Hands off!" "Do not touch!" "Visitors must not touch the fruit!" keep us all, men, women and children in order; and the police are on hand if any one happens to forget. Here are lines of apples that might well be called as tempting as Eve's forbidden fruit. Peaches, plums, pears, and grapes in endless variety; and each apple in large quantities of most beautiful shades of coloring, perfect little baskets to gaze upon, but only fit for preserves. The jelly and marmalade made from them is most delicious and a great table ornament. The display of fruit from Canada quite surprised us; but of all the exhibits Californian fruits carries off the palm. Such peaches, plums and grapes! They charge a pretty good price, but it finds ready sale. This display is improving every day as the Fall fruit ripens. M. A. C.
